

SURGEONS AWAIT CRISIS IN COL. ROOSEVELT'S CASE

Ex-President Plans to Return
Next Saturday to His Home
in Oyster Bay,
New York.

FOURTH RIB BROKEN

Doctors Report That Unless Blood Poisoning Develops
Before Tomorrow the Danger Will Pass.

WIFE IN CHARGE OF SICKROOM

Members of Wounded Statesman's Family Visit Him Frequently—Mrs.
Roosevelt Guards Husband—Inaugurates "Quiet Zone"—"Just Like Her, She's Like a Soldier Mapping Out a Campaign," Says Colonel.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—After a bedside
consultation between Colonel Roosevelt, Dr. John B. Murphy and Dr. Arthur D. Bevan it was decided that the colonel can start for Oyster Bay Saturday, provided, of course, that no symptoms of the dreaded blood poisoning shall develop in the meantime.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, is against moving the colonel so soon and said:
"It probably will be ten days before we go. It is too far distant to attempt prophecy." As Mrs. Roosevelt has assumed charge of the sickroom it is probable her wishes will be followed.

Colonel Roosevelt went to sleep
shortly before ten o'clock last night,
much more improved mentally and physically than the night before, and passed a comfortable night.

Fourth Rib Splintered.
A more careful examination of the X-ray photographs taken of the patient disclosed the fact that his fourth rib was slightly splintered by the impact of the bullet now lodged against it. This accounted for the discomfort the colonel has suffered.

The injection of anti-tetanus serum
is accountable for the jump of ten beats in his heart action noted yesterday.

Colonel Passes Easy Day.
The colonel passed an easy day.
He continued to exhibit the utmost indifference to the motives of the man Schrank, who sought his life.

"His name might be Czolgosz or anything else as far as I am concerned," he said to one of his visitors. "I never heard of him before and know nothing about him."

"You know," he said to Dr. J. B.
Murphy, "I have done a lot of hunting, and I know that a pistol slug fired at any range will not kill a bull moose."

Mrs. Roosevelt Takes Charge.
Few visitors were allowed to see Colonel Roosevelt at the hospital and Mrs. Roosevelt after dinner gave strict orders that no one was to be admitted in the evening. She has taken the room next to the colonel's and all visitors to his room must pass through her room.

Mrs. Roosevelt also inaugurated a "quiet zone" outside the colonel's door
and guards are posted to see that no one approaches within this.

"Isn't that bully?" Colonel Roosevelt said when he learned of this step.
"That is just like her. She starts out like a soldier mapping a campaign."

Mrs. Roosevelt smiled.
"This is a campaign," she said, "and I am to be the general." The colonel smiled his approval.

Jolly and cheerful as he was before her arrival, Mrs. Roosevelt's entry into the hospital brought the colonel to a high pitch of cheerfulness.

He fairly beamed his satisfaction at the arrangements she made.

Visitors Are Limited.
Medall McCormick and Cecil Lyon
were the only lay guests who were permitted to spend any time with the sick man. Dr. William A. Evans of Chicago came up in the morning and issued an optimistic statement after he had talked to the patient. The afternoon brought Dr. Woods Hutchinson, the well known writer on medical topics, who is an enthusiastic "Bull Moose." Doctor Hutchinson issued a statement late in the afternoon,
in which he declared that all danger
of tetanus had passed with the injection of the tetanus serum, and that the only possible peril was infection
from germs carried into the wound by the bullet.

ABE MARTIN

Mrs. Tipton Bud and children have returned from Seymour where they took in their relatives and visited the opera. Miss Fawn Lippincott says she'd hate to live in a city where even your next door neighbor don't care if you've got a new hat.

The colonel spent the day looking over the telegrams, which came in to the number of 2,000, and in dictating
answers to those which seemed to require immediate replies. The more important messages received were
from King George of England, Emperor William, the king of Italy, the crown prince and princess of Germany, the king of Denmark and King Alfonso of Spain.

CUBS 1 0 0 2 0 0 0 2 0 5

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 17.—Special to Telegraph—Cubs and Sox resumed
their battle for the baseball supremacy
of Chicago today at the west side
park, and Callahan's men were determined to win the game evening
up the series. It was up to Cheney to prevent the White Sox from doing this and win today's game, thereby giving the Cubs the championship;
while Manager Callahan chose Lange
and Schalk as his battery.

The Cubs scored one in the first,
but the Sox came right back in the second and tied it up. Cheney's men took a good lead in the fourth when they pounded out four runs. They maintained this lead until the seventh when Collins soaked a home run into the bleachers, Borton doubled and Weaver also got a homer,
scoring three runs.

The Cubs took the lead in the last of the eighth when Good, batting for Cheney, singled. He was forced at second by Sheppard, Miller batting for Leach, lifted a high one to right,
which Lord misjudged and the hit
went for three bases, Sheppard scoring. Zimmerman doubled scoring Miller, after Tinker had fouled out.

CUBS WILL PLAY HERE NEXT WEEK.

FAMOUS CHICAGO BALL PLAY-ERS WILL PLAY POSTPONED GAME HERE NEXT WEEK.

Charles E. Miller,
Dixon, Ill.
Make date for Wednesday. Will all be there.

WARD MILLER.

The above telegram, received by Charles Miller from his brother, Ward, this morning, insures the
muchly advertised and postponed
Cubs-Dixon All Stars game for next Wednesday, Oct. 23.

The Cubs' defeat at the hands of the lowly Sox yesterday made it necessary for the continuation of the Chicago championship series today
and accordingly the proposed game
in this city had to be postponed.
Fearing that if the game was not played until next week the regular Cub lineup would not appear here,
the local promoters wired Ward Miller that unless he would guarantee the real and only genuine Cubs the game here would be permanently called off. The telegram was the answer, and accordingly advertising
for the game will be started at once.

OUT CAMPAIGNING.

States Attorney Harry Edwards,
Circuit Clerk Wm. B. McMahon, Deputy County Clerk Fred Dimick and County Clerk Wm. Thompson drove to Amboy in the McMahon auto today. The republican candidates are making a thorough canvass of the county and although they are meeting with the most gratifying encouragement on every hand, they are not shirking the strenuous duties of the campaign.

RETURN TO ASHTON.

Mrs. Ash and daughter Dorothy,
who have been visiting in Dixon,
have returned to their home in Ashton.

SENATOR MAGILL HERE NEXT WEEK

POPULAR ORATOR AND HIGH PRINCIPLED LAWMAKER TO ADDRESS DIXON VOTERS.

ITINERY OF STEAD AND DICKISON

Gen. Dickison in Dixon Oct. 26 —
Chippewick Will Tour Lee County
Oct. 30—Will Speak in Dixon at Night.
Announcement was made today that Senator Hugh S. Magill, associate editor of the Bureau County Republican at Princeton, the defeated candidate in the primary fight for United States senator to succeed
Hon. Shelby M. Cullom, last spring, will speak at a republican rally in Dixon some day next week.

The news sounds good to a great majority of the voters of Lee county for, as the vote at the primary election testified, Senator Magill is held in the highest kind of regard by residents of this vicinity.

During the primaries Mr. Magill was a candidate for nomination on
the progressive republican ticket, against Lawrence Y. Sherman. Although Senator Magill carried Lee county and many others, he was not nominated. Many candidates met the same fate. But Senator Magill differs from the majority of defeated candidates; he stayed by his colors
and said he was perfectly satisfied
to abide by the voice of the people.
He is still a republican, and the party
is proud of him.

If arrangements can be made Senator Magill will be sent through the county for a short trip on the day of his meeting in Dixon.

The itinerary of Attorney General
Wm. Stead, who will tour Lee county by auto in company with a party of republican candidates on Thursday, Oct. 24, has been arranged so that the famous and popular official will start the day with a rousing old time republican speech at Amboy in the morning at 10 o'clock, winding up at Dixon in the evening for a love feast and big republican rally
at republican headquarters in this city. An exceptionally big meeting is looked for at night in Dixon. The schedule for the day's trip is:

Speaking Time.
Thursday, Oct. 24.

Amboy—10 a. m.
West Brooklyn—11:30 a. m.
Compton—1:00 p. m.
Pawpaw—2:00 p. m.
Steward—3:30 p. m.
Ashton—5:00 p. m.
Franklin Grove—6:00 p. m.
Dixon—8:00 p. m.

Dickison Makes Three Speeches

General Dickison will also be in the county on Saturday, Oct. 26 and this fluent talker and popular statesman will be the feature speaker at three big meetings held in the county on that day.

The first meeting on Saturday will be held at Ashton, then to Amboy
by auto, and a big night meeting in Dixon.

The itinerary for Saturday, Oct.
26, will be:

Ashton—1:30 p. m.
Amboy—3:30 p. m.
Dixon—8:00 p. m.

TAFT STEADY AND SURE
"William Howard Taft is no
juggler," says Elbert Hubbard.
"He is neither a Napoleon, a Caesar, or an Alexander the Great. He is not erratic, uncertain, and he does not ebul-
late at an unknown temperature. He is a man you can count on. He moves steadily, ly, but at any event he moves surely and he moves in the right direction. He does not exceed the speed limit. If he makes mistakes, as all men do,
he profits by them. The prosperity of the people, in my mind, and in the minds of thousands of others, lies in the fact that the people of the United States—the men, the women and the children—believe that the Government is in safe hands.
"President Taft does not rock the boat."

EDWARDS NAME CANNOT APPEAR ON THE BALLOT

FIGURES FROM THREE COUN-TIES SAID TO SHOW ENOUGH
ILLEGAL SIGNERS TO INVALI-DATE PETITION.

AFFECTS BOARD OF EQUALIZATION ALSO

Progressive Candidates for Congress and Board of Equalization Affected—Filed Blanket Petition—Had
But 63 Names Over the Required Number—Lacks Eight Names.

Opponents of I. F. Edwards of this city and Isaac Evans of Milledgeville, progressive candidates for congressman and member of the state board of equalization respectively, who have been investigating their nomination petition, which was filed in Springfield, claim to have discovered on the petition the names of enough voters who took part in the primaries to invalidate the petition nominating the two men.

And they further claim that they have discovered these names in but three of the six counties comprising the district.

The number of alleged illegal
names found is:

Lee county 30
Carroll county 31
Ogle county 10

Total 71

Need But 63.

According to the allegations of those in charge of the investigation of the petition it was necessary to show that but 63 of the signers had voted at the primaries. According to this the progressive candidates are already short eight names. The investigation is now going on in White side, Jo Daviess and Stephenson counties, and it is reported that many more names will be stricken from the petition when the work in these counties is completed.

Names on Back of Sheet.

It has been discovered that eight names were written on the back of one sheet of the nomination papers,
and of course these will be attacked.
But the opponents of the progressive candidates are including these names
in their estimate of what must be done to invalidate the petitions; the revised figures being:

Names on petition 666
Necessary to nominate 603

Names above required number, 63
Invalid names in 3 counties.... 71

Comment on Situation.

The Mt. Carroll Democrat, commenting on the situation in that county which was brought to a head
at a democratic meeting there Tuesday evening, says:

Mr. Rariden, the democratic candidate for congress, is a pleasant gentleman, but "of course he has a great majority to overcome in this district, and can hardly expect to be elected."

In reporting the attack on Mr. Edwards' petition the Democrat says:

The petition which was circulated in Mt. Carroll by W. P. Robbe contains 24 names. Out of those 24 had voted; one man's name, Frank M.
Crim, is not on the poll book or register book and nobody knows him, consequently there are only three names on the Mt. Carroll list that are good. Five on the Chadwick list circulated by George Morris have not been gone over yet. Thus far, Carroll county has furnished 27 illegal names, when 25 were all that were needed outside of Lee county itself to put Mr. Edwards on the blink. What Mr. Robbe meant by getting voters who had voted at the primary to sign that petition is beyond our ken, and why those voters would illegally sign a petition after the question had been decided last spring, is also a question which we cannot solve. We have the list in our possession and there are certainly a large majority of those on the list who, by their superior intelligence should have known better than to have signed it.

PRINCE PETER

Prince Peter, the youngest son of King Nicholas of Montenegro, is twenty years old, and had the distinction of firing the first shot in his country's war against Turkey.

ED ATKINS HAD NARROW ESCAPE

YOUNG MAN WAS THROWN DI-RECTLY IN FRONT OF STREET CAR—ROLLED OUT OF PATH.

Ed Atkins had a very narrow escape from very serious injury last evening when he was struck by a bicycle ridden by Clint Ringler and was thrown directly in the path of a moving street car. Fortunately he was able to throw himself to the outside of the track just as the car passed him.

The near accident occurred at 5:15 last evening in front of the Plymouth clothing store. Mr. Atkins had been talking to someone on the sidewalk when he noticed the westbound car, which he had intended to board, approaching. He ran off the sidewalk and started for the car
without looking around and ran directly in front of Ringler's wheel.

Both men were knocked to the pavement and Atkins fell directly on the street car tracks. In a fraction of a minute the car passed and spectators feared to look, for all who saw the young man fall was certain the car must have passed over him. However he was able to throw himself
to one side before the car reached him and escaped with an injured
knee, which he hurt in falling.

PETIT JURY WAS EXCUSED FOR TERM

SETTLEMENTS AND POSTPONE-
MENTS CLEARS COURT
OF CASES.

Judge O. E. Heard this morning
excused the petit jury of the Lee county circuit court for the term.
The settlement of one case and the postponement of the City of Dixon
vs. Mayer case until the next term, making it unnecessary to keep the jurors any longer. The jury is busy today taking care of chancery matters, and will hold court tomorrow
for the same purpose.

GET LIGHTING CONTRACTS IN DEKALB COUNTY

Contracting Agent Yontz of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., has
this week completed negotiations
with the authorities of Burlington, Somonauk, and Sandwich in Dekalb county, whereby the company
gets franchises and street lighting
contracts in each of the places.

CANDY KITCHEN OPENS

Cledon's Athenian Candy Kitchen
in the new Loftus & O'Connell building, opened for patronage at noon today, and many people visited the handsome new confectionery. The furnishings and fountain in the store
are among the prettiest in this section of the state and the management proposes to handle nothing but first class goods. The formal opening will take place Saturday and Sunday and during those evenings there will be music by the Marquette orchestra.

STEAD THRU COUNTY WEEK FROM TODAY

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF ILLI-NOIS WILL MAKE MANY SPEECHES HERE.

NIGHT MEETING TO BE IN DIXON

Both Men Will Tour County and Hold Meetings in Dixon—Meetings in Dixon Will Be Held in Armory Hall.

MEETING AT COMPTON TOMORROW NIGHT

Hon. Lumley Will Speak at Big Republican Rally in Compton—Rally
at Ashton Last Night a Fine
One and Many Republican Votes
Were Made—Republican Campaign On In Earnest.

The efforts of the republican county central committee to secure Hon.
Lawrence Y. Sherman, republican candidate for United States senator, for an address in the county were in-vain, a letter received by Secretary Mark C. Keller, of the committee, bringing the information that Mr.
Sherman's time until election day had been fully assigned. The failure of their efforts to secure Mr.
Sherman is a disappointment to the members of the committee, but they are pleased with the manner in which the committee has taken care
of their requests for other speakers,
for within the next two weeks a number of prominent statesmen will speak in Lee county.

The state committee has assigned
Hon. B. M. Chippewick, republican candidate for congressman-at-large,
for a tour through the county Wednesday, Oct. 30, and Attorney General Wm. H. Stead, who is a candidate for re-election, will make a trip through the county in an automobile a week from Thursday, Oct.
24th.

General Dickison to Come

In addition to the above the state committee has promised that Adjutant General Dickison will make an address in Dixon Saturday, Oct. 26, Gen. Dickison, who was here during the military encampment, when he made many friends, is a speaker of force and interest and there is no doubt a large crowd will greet him
on his appearance here.

Another speaker assigned by the state committee is Hon. Lumley who will speak at a big republican meeting at Compton tomorrow evening.
In addition to Mr. Lumley the county candidates will make addresses,
and indications are for a successful meeting at Compton. However, these meetings will not be the only ones
held in the county, for the central committee has made arrangements
for a number of other sessions in the various townships, which will be addressed by local speakers. Further announcements concerning these gatherings will be made later.

Big Meeting at Ashton.

A big republican rally was held at Ashton last evening, the hall being filled to capacity with interested voters. The principal address of the evening was made by Hon. Harry H.
Waite of Prophetstown, formerly states attorney of Whiteside county,
a speaker of ability and strength.
Mr. Waite argued most effectively for the re-election of the republican ticket from Taft down and there is no doubt that his remarks did much good for the G. O. P. cause. Other speakers were States Attorney Edwards and Circuit Clerk McMahon,
who made short talks.

The republican campaign is on in earnest, and from now until Nov. 5
the voters of Lee county will have the republican gospel presented to them many times by speakers of note.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add 1/2 pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacal and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Hen That Works Overtime.

A Brockton hen is reported, without confirmatory evidence, to have done what would appear to be rather more than her share in reduction of the high cost of living by laying four eggs in ten hours. To make the achievement still more remarkable the narrator affirms that the hen wasn't feeling very well at the time in fact that she had been taken into the house for her health. The egg producers' union agent ought to look after this effort at overproduction.—Boston Transcript.

Lest we forget.
In childhood days we were all told never to count our chickens before they were hatched.
And we also faintly recollect that we have heard something about a ball game being over until the last man is out.
All of which has to do with the Cubs-Dixon game.

In the words of Chas. Mille and Eli Rosenthal it's a helvathing.
And if we had a chance to talk to Tommy Leach and Heinie Zimmerman about those boots they made we'll tell them a few things they may never have heard before.

However the agitation over baseball, both local and foreign has been of some service.

It has taken some of our attention away from politics.

There was one good and pleasing feature—personally—about the post ponement. Yesterday morning Chas. Miller asked us to bet with him that the Sox would win, for he said he had not lost a baseball wager all summer, and he felt sure if he bet on the Cubs, letting us pick the the poor and lowly Sox, the Cubs would win. Just to accommodate we did as he desired. Result—we have one large and juicy coca cola coming.

Eli Rosenthal, who had been up the river at his houseboat yesterday, came back down town late in the evening to make final arrangements for today's game. After he saw the score board posted in front of his store, he immediately beat it back up stream again. He is not expected home until Saturday.

Dis as still as he can be.
But when he goes to sleep, oh,
He makes suh a clatter,
Scares you almost half to death
Wondering what's the matter.
First he gives a growl or two,
Then begins to rumble,
Then lets out a snort or two,
Then he'll groan and grumble.
Wonder if pa's broke inside,
Or been getting rusted?
'Spect I'd better have him fixed
Or he'll wake up busted.

One Benefit.
To top off an expensive education a young married woman of no particular ability in any one line took a course at a dramatic school. She never attempted to secure an engagement, so one day a close and candid friend of her husband asked what good all that training had done, anyhow.
"So far as I can see," he said, "that $300 you spent on Ethel's dramatic education has been practically thrown away."
"Oh, no, it hasn't," returned the husband mildly. "Her stage experience has taught her to dress in a hurry. Nowadays when I ask her to go any place with me she can change her clothes in ten minutes. It used to take over an hour."

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

By MARCIN BARBER
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

It was a charming little boudoir into which Donnelly's spreading feet and Carson's flat tread carried the detectives. Mrs. Missioner, Elinor and Dorothy went only a little way in and looked on silently. The men made their search according to their natures, Carson with moderate indifference and dispatch, Donnelly exhaustively, lingeringly, gloatingly. When the large sleuth's thick fingers and bony gaze became more than ordinary intrusive, Mrs. Missioner seemed about to protest, but each time she checked herself.
"It is better to let them search thoroughly," said Elinor. "Since this is considered necessary, I wish it to be made complete. Please do not interfere with them." She handed to Carson a small silver keyring. He passed it to his mate, and Donnelly's enjoyment of the situation increased by leaps and bounds. No single key on the tiny ring escaped use of his hands. He unlocked boxes, a dressing case and other places of possible concealment. His method would have drawn a derisive smile from Chief of Detectives Manning. But Manning was far downtown in Mulberry street, and could not know the course his subordinates were pursuing.
From a drawer in Elinor's Chippendale secretary Donnelly took a box of rare lacquer and fitted a key to it. He stopped to gaze searchingly at Miss Holcomb for a few minutes, then he unlocked the box.

"I hate to pry into any young lady's little keepsakes," he said in a ponderously patronizing manner. "but, as Miss Holcomb hasn't been to Malden Lane in such a long time, I know she won't object. Now, this little box of course, contains nothing but trinkets or odds and ends—love letters, maybe?" Elinor's heart steeled at the leer in his face. She turned her eyes to Dorothy's loving little face, and clung to the debutante's hand. Donnelly, fumbling with the key for awhile opened the lacquered box.

"Just what I said, you see," he exclaimed. "Nothing but trinkets and other little souvenirs—huh!—of old romances, perhaps. Eh, it's great to be a summer girl, Miss Holcomb. If only you had jewels like Mrs. Missioner's, you'd shine with the best of them. Gee, but that must be a beauty, that necklace, if the imitation is so pretty."

He stirred the contents of the box idly. Nothing else remained to be searched. He had ransacked the intimate sanctity of the girl's room. He felt baffled and sorely irritated. At the thought of failure, he thrust his fingers into the box with such violence that everything it held fell to the floor. Carson stooped to pick up the scattered jewelry, placing it in Donnelly's hand to be returned to the box. After recovering several bits of jewelry he laid in his big colleague's greedy clutch a small, round object wrapped in silk tissue.
"Hello, what's this?" exclaimed Donnelly, rolling the fairy parcel between finger and thumb. "You won't mind if I peep in the paper, young lady? Of course you won't. And this is only a—say, what the mischief is it? Oh, glory!"

Even Carson was startled into an echoing "Oh!" and the three women almost screamed. For, nestled in the folds of the tissue, its facets twinkling in the insistent green glow of the vacuum lights, flashed a diamond—an unmistakable diamond—which Mrs. Missioner and Dorothy and Elinor recognized as one of the looser gems from the Maharanee necklace—much smaller than the Maharanee diamond, but twice the size of an ordinary stone. And it was a diamond even a novice could tell was genuine!

All the blood left Elinor's face. The muscles of her throat leaped and knotted as if she were strangling. She swayed for a moment, then took a long step toward the detective and stood trembling, covering her face with quivering hands. Donnelly, holding the diamond to the light, was about to speak—in what words, what manner, one can guess. But the misery in the girl's attitude struck the triumphant grin from his face, and there was momentary compassion in the tone in which he said:

"We'd better go back to the library. I guess. Will you go with my side-partner, Miss Holcomb?"

Carson's advance to the secretary's side was checked by the violence with which she whirled toward Mrs. Missioner, again with outstretched hands. This time the widow was slower in meeting the appeal. She was stunned by the detective's discovery. All the finer sensibilities of her womanhood were benumbed. Astonishment, large and compelling, was all she could feel for the moment. Still, she took Elinor's imploring hands in hers and stood motionless, listening to the girl's passionate entreaty not to believe the evidence of her eyes, not to believe her kindness could be outraged in such a way, not to believe that Elinor for all the jewels in the mines of the world could be tempted from the high honor in which she had been reared. Clasp the younger woman's locked fingers in her own soft palm, she slipped her arm about Elinor's waist and walked with her to the lift. Dorothy, crying almost childishly, controlled her voice once or twice long enough to beg Elinor not to give way to such torturing emotion.

But Elinor Holcomb, shaking, sobbing, wildly beseeching, was oblivious to the silent watchfulness of the central office men, the covert glances from Blodgett's mask-like countenance, the amazed stare of the liveried youth in the elevator. All the way to the room in which Sands and Griswold and Ransome waited, all the way across the old English library to the ruddy zone before the fireplace, she continued her prayers to Mrs. Missioner to hold her guiltless. That was the one thought that shaped her thoughts; that the woman to whom she owed the shelter of her later youth should not think her capable of such ignominious ingratitude. There was no slightest shade of appeal to the detectives, no regard for the conclusions others in the room might draw. But that Mrs. Missioner should give credit to the cold accusation that glittered in the diamond Donnelly had found—that plainly was the unbearable thing in the wretched young woman's present position.

"You won't have to telephone the chief, Mr. Man," said Donnelly to Sands with as direct a sneer as he thought advisable. "This has been one of our easiest cases."

His fat hand was extended toward the millionaire. In the crease of the palm, the diamond blazed as if indignant at such a setting. Sands glared at the stone, Griswold gazed at it as if spellbound. Ransome polished his glasses with much deliberation, and adjusting them with equal precision, looked at the gem fixedly.

"This one's the goods, eh?" the detective went on. Ransome, with marked fastidiousness, took the jewel from his hand and examined it as if his reputation as an expert depended on his test. Reluctantly, he returned the gem to Donnelly and said, gently, with a plying glance at Elinor:
"It is a diamond."
A sweeping gesture from Sands as he sprang to his feet flung the telephone from the desk. He reached Donnelly in two strides and appeared on the point of gripping him by the throat. But the big detective, for all his bulk and mental slowness, could be quick enough on his feet when he must, and he readily sacrificed dignity to safety. With a single backward spring, he clutched a light chair and confronted Sands.

"I'll pay you to remember I'm an officer!" he shouted. "You ain't dealing with club stewards here, Mr. Sands. I know you and I know how much you think your money can do. But you can't put anything like that across with me."

Sands, breathing hard, took another step toward him. Donnelly gripped the chair for a defensive swing.
"I don't care if you know a million Mannings," said the sleuth huskily. "If you can't behave like one gentleman to another, it'll be the worse for you. If you don't want to be run in, keep away."

Mrs. Missioner's annoyance and Dorothy's fright, no less than Elinor's distress, restrained Sands again.

"What does all this mean?" he said to Carson, ignoring the other. But Donnelly was not to be ignored. His successful defiance of a millionaire had heightened his desire for the center of the stage.

"It means," he rasped, "that we know who took Mrs. Missioner's diamonds, and that all we've got to do now is to find the rest of 'em. And I guess that won't be hard. Where there's one bird, the flock won't be far away. Come, Miss Holcomb, we and you'll be getting downtown. The chief wants to see you."

CHAPTER V.

The Brownstone House.
While Elinor, helpless in the reaction from her grief, was speeding to Mulberry street in a taxicab with Donnelly and Carson, a swart, slim man glided out by the servants' door of the Missioner home. His modern garments, Oriental only by faint suggestion in the English looseness of their cut, caught the eye merely by contrast with the snowy turban that covered his head. He moved with the cat tread of one long accustomed to walking on his own soles. His shoes were conventional enough in appearance, but of softer leather than that of ordinary American make. It was evident that he relied on the silence of his footwear and, judging from the caution with which he let himself out of the house and looked up and down the street before quitting the threshold, he wished to get away without trumpeting his departure. Seeing no one in the block, he walked swiftly toward Fifth avenue and turned the corner so sharply that he bowled over a district messenger. A few words in a foreign tongue were his response to the select vernacular of the rising youngster hurled at him—words so mysterious that a final "Ah, gah!" was the utmost of which the astonished boy was capable by way of reply. To be flung to the sidewalk by a personage in a British tourist's suit with a headgear out of the Arabian Nights well may be disconcerting, even to No. 4762 of the A. D. T.

The dark man hailed a hansom, muttered "The park" to the driver, and sat well back in the vehicle, closing the apron doors and lowering the upper curtain until he left only a narrow space for observation. In the interior gloom, laced by chance lances of light from arc lamps, he sprinkled himself freely with many drops from a silver vial that smelled of the East. He readjusted the folds of his turban, settled his collar and scarf, and shook himself more closely into his clothes, which, despite their loose cut, seemingly were tighter than he liked.

North of the Casino, in the East drive of Central park, the Hindoo pulled the check strap and gave new directions to the cabman. The hansom turned out of the park at Seventy-second street and rolled on rubber tires in an easterly direction, crossing several avenues before it stopped in front of a brownstone house exactly like several others in the block. The Oriental paid the cabman and stood on the sidewalk until the hansom turned the corner. Then he walked east a few yards, crossed the street, turned west, and darted into the vestibule of a house that was the twin of the one at which the cab had stopped. He did not ring the bell, but scratched lightly on the ground glass pane of the inner door. The door swung inward and he entered a hall lighted only by a glimmer that filtered through the glass from a gas lamp in the street. A voice in the dark asked a question in a language somewhat like that the Hindoo had flung over his shoulder at the messenger boy. The visitor answered with a single word, and a sunburst of light upon him from a cluster of incandescent bulbs above his head.

"If you are false, turn back," said the voice in one of the higher tongues of India.

"True though lowly follower of the Light am I," the Hindoo replied, with a profound salutation toward inkblack portieres at the far end of the hall. He moved slowly toward the curtains and stretched forth his hand. Again the voice spoke.

"If there be doubt of doubting in your heart, turn back ere it be too late," it said. "There is no repentance this side of the screen. Beware! Turn back!"

But the Hindoo, with another deep bow, parted the heavy curtains and stepped through the opening. Without a single glance at the sumptuous Eastern furnishings of the room, he bent his body forward with touching, outstretched hands until his fingers well-nigh reached the floor. In that posture he remained until, in the tones of the voice that had sounded through the outer darkness, a man sitting cross-legged on a divan at the other end of the room murmured an acknowledgment of the salutation. Slowly the visitor straightened himself and looked at the divan, without raising his eyes to the face of the man upon it.

"The peace of the Immutible One be upon you," he said in his harsher dialect. "Your servant Am comes to report upon his mission."

"Peace be to you, faithful one," answered the other. Not until then did All look his master in the face.
The master seemingly did not wear the evening dress of the Occident in which he had appeared in the opera box adjoining Mrs. Missioner's. His slender, well-knit figure was swathed in the clinging garments of the East—garments of silken stuff that fluttered and rippled with every movement, that seemed to rustle in echo of his thoughts.

"What are your tidings, Am?" asked the man on the divan. He gave little thoughtful tugs at a punkah string and the resultant breeze stirred the smoke wreaths from his narghileh.

"The jewel, O Swami!"

"The other's eyes glistened.
"What of it?" he inquired.
"Gone!" returned the humbler Hindoo. "Vanished!"

"And you did not get it?"

"Swami, I did not. Your servant is a dog and the son of a dog, but he has done his best."

The man on the divan watched his servant through slitted eyes.

"Where is the jewel?" he asked sternly.

"Who knows, holy man?" replied the visitor. "It has taken upon itself wings and in its place a false stone was left. The wit of your servant is completely at fault. I know not where the diamond is."

The swami did not tell him he had seen the destruction of the false Maharanee by Griswold's heel in the Metropolitan Opera House. He smoked thoughtfully, his fingers knotting and unraveling the punkah-string in an absent way.

"And you have come straightway with the news?" he asked.
"As the hawk flies, master," said the servant. There was trepidation in his eyes, but he answered unhesitatingly.

"It is well," the Swami said, between rings of blue smoke. "Wait without. All, and I will have speech with you in a little while."

The visitor, with another low salutation, withdrew as he had entered, backing across the threshold. In the hall, his figure shot to its full height and he flashed a glance of uncertain meaning at the outer side of the portieres. He passed silently up the stairs and slipped into a room above that in which the Swami sat. His cat-like tread carried him to a closet, into which he crept. Flattening himself on the floor, he applied his ear to a hole so small it scarcely widened the crack between two boards. He could not see, but he could hear the creak of the punkah as, after a violent tug by the man on the divan, it continued swinging to and fro.

Hardly had the Hindoo left the room when the Swami, like a mummer throwing off a mask, arose briskly from the divan and cast aside the silk robe that enveloped him. The silken turban remained on his head, but in all other respects he was dressed like a Wall Street man. His feet, drawn beneath his robe as he sat on the broad couch, had not shown the patent leather shoes in which they were encased. He lighted a European cigarette and puffed as if he enjoyed the change from the pungent Eastern tobacco.

Up and down the room he walked springily, pausing from time to time with puckered forehead and thumbs resting on the edges of his coat pockets. Then he walked softly to a door at one side of the room, and opening it a little way, called softly:
"Kananda."

A man of mature years came in quietly and looked inquiringly at the Swami. He was of portly build, but his vigor still showed traces of the athletic training he had followed in English schools and colleges. His Western manner and excellent English were not in surprising contrast to his Indian swarthiness among those who remembered the vogue a British education had among India's petty princes in the reign of Victoria. Queen and Empress. Prince Kananda had been one of the best batsmen on the Cambridge eleven. His popularity among the democratic young aristocrats of the period had sprung from the fact when he remarked it was not his fault his father was a Maharajah, and that it shouldn't be treasured against him, even though he couldn't live it down. Nandy, as they called him on the banks of the Cam, was voted a good sort. The classification had stuck to him wherever men foregathered, from the Strangers' Club of the Straits Settlement to White's and the Union League.

"What's the row, your reverence?" he asked. On the surface, he took the faith of his fathers lightly, Oriental though he was in the marrow.

"The Maharanee has disappeared," said the Swami.

"Whoo-ee!" returned Kananda. "If that blessed stone isn't the Wandering Jew of jewels! How long has it been missing this time?"

"Nobody knows, unless it be its present possessor. Moreover, prince you are, ruler you may be, but I cannot overlook your levity in connection with so sacred a gem. Besides, my friend, remember the brethren."

Nandy's face became serious immediately.

"I wasn't exactly poking fun at the Maharanee," he apologized, "and they who suffer are never long absent from my thoughts. It's a Western habit, this flippancy—comes from trying to graft a Hindoo sprig on a British oak, you know."

"We are of the Orient," said the Swami, still rebukingly. "We should not copy the barbarisms of the Occident."

Nandy's eyes twinkled as the humor of such an observation in the heart of Manhattan flashed upon him. In a moment, he was grave again, however. He swung himself to a table, lightly for one of his bulk, and sat kicking his heels as he awaited the Hindoo priest's narrative.

"There's little to tell," the Swami went on, himself dropping into the easier speech of the West as his companion stopped smiling. "The great diamond is gone and all has no idea of its whereabouts. Night and day on the watch in the woman's home, he has nothing to tell further than that the jewel has disappeared and an arrest has been made."

"So they've caught the thief?"

To Be Continued.

Woman's Power

Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves only she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heats. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Economical Anyway.

J. Willis Westlake, the noted Florida pomologist, said in a recent address at Lake Helen: "The orange grower must be an optimist to succeed. He can't expect ten thousand oranges from every tree at the start. He should show the spirit of John Blane. Blane's first orange crop, when he settled in Florida, wasn't much to boast of. The man, however, kept up heart. 'How did your oranges do?' a friend asked him at the season's end. 'Oh, we had a few,' he replied. 'Good ones?' 'Fine!' said Blane. 'My wife uses them in place of lemons. It makes quite a saving.'"

New Kind of Stamps.

Never had there been such a commotion in the little home, and the most wildly excited person was the sister of the young mother who had just presented twins to her husband. Off she rushed to the postoffice for stamps to spread the great tidings abroad.

"Stamps, please," she said, as she flung down her money.

"How many, miss?" asked the clerk.

"Two," she cried joyfully.

"What kind?"

"A boy and a girl."

Peril of Publicity.

Senator Tillman was talking about a politician who always keeps himself in the public eye. "He is as bad," said Senator Tillman, "as poor old Hamlet Binks, who went to Ocean Grove for his vacation, and fell off Ross' pavilion at high tide and got drowned." "Poor devil!" said the reporter. "But how did he happen to fall off?" "He was trying," said Senator Tillman, "to keep himself in the center of a coastwise steamer's searchlight."—Los Angeles Times.

JOSEPH KILDUFF WAS SLUGGED BY ROBBER

NEPHEW OF DIXON MAN IS THE VICTIM OF A DAYLIGHT
HOLDUP AT PERU.

The Daily News-Herald, of Peru, Illinois, has a story of the slugging of Joseph Kilduff, and the robbery of the Kilduff home. The family is related in Dixon, and Joseph Kilduff is a nephew of P. J. Finkler, of West Dixon. The article reads:

A daring daylight, the like of which is unequalled in the history of the local police department, was committed shortly after ten o'clock Sunday morning, a block from the heart of the business section.

The daring robbery took place at the residence of Jos. Kilduff, 1722 Third street. Mr. and Mrs. Kilduff left their home shortly before ten o'clock to go to church and Joseph, their sixteen year old son, was left alone in the house.

The youth tells the police that at about fifteen minutes after ten o'clock he was seated in the dining room doing some school work, when the front door bell rang.

Slug Youth at Door

The boy, far from thinking of burglars unhesitatingly threw open the door and from that point on his memory is hazy. Doctors who examined him later declare that he had evidently been struck over the side of his head with a sand bag and sank to the floor in front of the open door.

Of what followed young Kilduff knows little or nothing.

Found by Parents

At twenty minutes after eleven Mr. and Mrs. Kilduff returned from church and when they entered the parlor they found the prostrate form of their son on the floor in front of the piano.

Several handkerchiefs had been forced into his mouth and a large boot strap used to bind his hands and feet. His arms were tied behind his back and his body was secured to a leg of the piano.

He was semi-conscious state when found, and a physician was summoned. His examination disclosed the fact that the worst injury the boy had sustained was the blow on his head.

Suspect Is Arrested

Chief of Police Puthoff and Sheriff Mischke were summoned and a joint investigation started. Last evening a suspect was taken in by the two officers and taken to the Kilduff home.

The youth declared to the officers that the suspect was not the man who had slugged him. The boy is unable to give much of a description of the robber, in fact the only information he is able to furnish is that his assailant was tall and wore brown clothes. He struck young Kilduff so quickly that he had little or no time to see him.

Robber Gets Two Dollars.

The only reward the daring daylight robber got for his work was a $2 bill he found in the boy's clothing. Young Kilduff's pockets were turned inside out when he was discovered.

Nothing else in the house was molested and this is explained by the fact that a dog had been tied in the cellar and when the animal heard the commotion in the room above it set forth an alarm that frightened the intruder.

The Great White Sale!

Quite a nation was moving about in these snowy regions. And the crowd seemed to be black, like skaters on a Polish lake in December. On the ground floor there was a heavy swelling, ruffled by a reflux, in which nothing but the delicate enraptured faces of women could be distinguished. In the caps of the iron framework, up the staircases, on the hanging bridges, there was an endless ascent of small figures, which looked as if lost amidst the snowy peaks of mountains. A suffocating hot-house heat surprised one at sight of these frozen heights. The buzz of all the voices made a great noise, like that of a river carrying ice along. Up above, the profusion of gilding, the glass-work and the golden roses seemed like a burst of sunshine, glittering over the Alps of this grand exhibition of white goods.—From Zola's "The Ladies Paradise."

Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Armstrong and daughter Frances of Decatur, visited Sunday with Mrs. Margaret Armstrong.

T. H. Armstrong of Denver was a Sunday guest at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Armstrong.

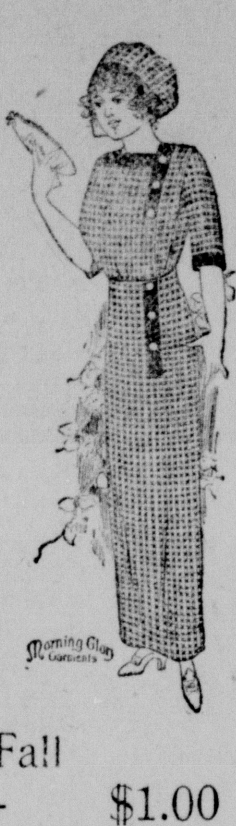

Fuel Consumption Test.
In the presence of a number of automobilists a gasoline consumption test was made by William H. Stewart, Jr., of New York city, over a measured course to show the difference in fuel consumption of an engine while in the hands of the competent and incompetent operator. There has been considerable discussion of this particular point, and interest was keen to know the percentage of difference in fuel consumption. The results were very surprising. The test showed that 34 per cent. more fuel was used by the incompetent operator. This applied only to the gasoline consumption. The actual depreciation of the car could not, of course, be estimated, but it is safe to assume that the percentage of wear and tear was even greater.

Busy Telephone Operators.
When you are tempted to be impatient with "central" because she cannot give you your number with quite the speed of lightning, it would not be amiss to remember these facts. The British postmaster general has stated that the average time, on fifty thousand calls observed, taken from the moment of ringing up to the moment the operator responded, was 5.1 seconds, and the average time till the person answered 28.6 seconds. But that was in phlegmatic England. In nervous Chicago the corresponding average times were 3.1 seconds, and 25.4 seconds. How would you like to try to do it quicker than that yourself?—The Outlook.

Mrs. Ditto, wife of Dr. Ditto, and daughter of Mrs. H. Halstead, died last evening at her home in Iowa. Obituary will be published later. Burial will take place in Dixon.

Bulldog Attacked Horse.

An extraordinary occurrence was witnessed at Castleford, Yorkshire, England, not long since, a bulldog making an attack upon a valuable mare, and having to be killed to rescue the horse. The dog was a valuable one, belonging to the landlord of the North-Eastern hotel. When the animal was passing along Station road, near the hotel, the dog suddenly flew at its throat, but failed to get hold. The animal was driven on towards its stable, but the dog could not be induced to leave it, and followed down a couple of streets until the shop was reached. There the dog got hold beneath the mare's body. It was impossible to free the unfortunate animal, and the dog was finally dispatched with a pole-ax. The dog had never before, it is said, shown any sign of mischief, and had, in fact, been so good-natured that children had been allowed to play with it. Its owner recently refused a good offer for it. The horse is recovering.

IDAHO WOMAN WINS $11,000

Through Her Plucky Work in Washington She Can Pay Mortgage on Home.

Washington.—Because of the signing of the bill which enables settlers who lost money by the Shoshone Dam project to recover various sums, Mrs. Katherine MacDonald, who nearly fainted in the house gallery when the effort to override the veto failed, has gone home with $11,000 in her shopping bag and will be able to pay the mortgage on her home where her sick husband lies and her three little girls are bravely keeping house.

A firm of contractors failed in erecting the dam. Mrs. MacDonald and her husband had operated a store and had taken the "time checks" of the workmen for pay for groceries and other necessities there. The government stepped in and completed the dam. Those who held claims against the contractors got nothing.

Mrs. MacDonald came here two years ago, but failed to get the bill through. Those who at first paid her expenses became disheartened. She then came again, paying her own expenses. She failed again. The third time, after the president had vetoed the bill and the house had failed to override the veto, it passed with modifications.

"I am completely worn out, and the sooner I get home the happier I will be," Mrs. MacDonald declared. "God has been good in that my little children have not been ill, but I have been worried almost to death by the illness of my husband."

The veto of the original bill was on the ground that it would impose additional charges on reclamation settlers on the Shoshone project. The bill finally passed imposed a charge against the general reclamation fund of $2,000, which met the president's approval.

The bank that held the mortgage on the MacDonald home held up foreclosure proceedings to await the action of congress.

SAVED $10 OF $17 WAGES

After Meeting High Cost of Living Woman Angered Husband by Buying Picture.

Baltimore.—A dizzy plunge into the extravagance which is the particular fad of J. Pierpont Morgan revealed the fact in police court the other morning that one family in Baltimore has been managing to bank $10 a week out of a weekly wage of $17, after providing for rent, insurance, food, furniture installments, clothing and a case of beer and apportioning the husband $2 spending money.

Mrs. Wensel Triber, No. 1422 Hull street, cited this feat in finance in the Southern police court, when her husband was arrested for tearing a hole in a picture his wife had bought through her "extravagance."

According to Mrs. Triber, the complainant, they have been married for five months. She told of the many things with which she provided the home with her $5 a week and finally worked down to the trouble which brought about their appearance in the police court.

She said Triber was dissatisfied with the amount and quality of food provided by his thrifty wife and when she became so extravagant as to buy a picture with money that he thought should have gone into the providing of a better larder he vented his spleen by kicking his foot through the offending picture.

Then he grasped his wife by the arm and asked her "what she was doing with her money"—and that was the last straw, the straw that ailed the Triber troubles in the police station.

Justice Levinson "gave it up" when he heard the testimony, and with a few words of counsel to the offended Triber, dismissed the charge against him.

REEK WITH TYPHOID GERMS

Dr. G. W. Stiles States Large Per Cent. of Bivalves on New York Market Are Bred in Sewage.

Washington, D. C.—Dr. George W. Stiles of the department of Agriculture has prepared a comprehensive bulletin showing that a large percentage of the oysters dumped into New York market are bred in sewage-polluted waters and reek with typhoid germs. The bulletin will be published in a few days.

Dr. Stiles devotes a chapter of his work to 127 cases of illness he traced from oysters dredged in Jamaica bay last fall. Dr. Stiles gave the Jamaica case as but one instance, and as proof positive that oysters carry typhoid germs when improperly bred.

The bulletin covers an investigation of the oyster dredging business in the vicinity of New York and New England, and by charts and bulletins it shows that millions of oysters are bred and floated in waters which are used as outlets for the human refuse of New York and the cities adjacent. The bulletin condemns such practices as being most dangerous to the health of the communities.

Gambler's Widow Testifies in Police Officer's Trial.

Woman Declared Lieutenant Becker Said He Would Do Anything for Slain Gambler.

New York, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Herman Rosenthal, widow of the murdered gambler, took the witness stand here in the trial of former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker.

After a number of witnesses were heard, Assistant District Attorney Moss announced that the state would rest its case after one or two more witnesses were called. He asked for a recess meantime, which was granted.

At the Elks' club last New Year's eve, according to Mrs. Rosenthal, "Mr. Becker came over to our table and put his arm around Rosenthal's neck."

"Mr. Becker asked: 'Well, Herman, how is things?' 'Not very well,' Herman said. 'Don't worry,' Mr. Becker answered, 'everything will be all right.'"

"Then Mr. Becker turned to me and said that he was ready to do anything for my husband at any hour of the day or night. He said he would at any time be at my husband's service."

Mrs. Rosenthal said she knew that Becker and her husband had "business transactions," and that she had learned their nature from Lieutenant Becker at her home. This was about the middle of last April, she added, when Becker had caused a raid to be made on her husband's gambling place. Becker was in the house at the time, she said.

"I said to Mr. Becker, 'For heaven's sake, what does this mean?'"

"Mr. Becker said: 'It had to be Herman or me.'"

Mrs. Rosenthal told of having seen her husband pass money to Jack Rosa, Becker's alleged collector. She said Rosenthal left scarcely enough money to bury him.

NAT GOODWIN FACES SUIT

Irate Husband Wants $25,000 for Losing Wife's Affections.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 17.—Charles Doughty, a real estate man, has brought suit, through his attorneys, against Nat C. Goodwin, the famous actor, for $25,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections. Mrs. Doughty is known on the stage as Marjorie Moreland and has played with Mr. Goodwin as his leading lady. Doughty, in his complaint, alleges that Goodwin, through his masterly manners and winning ways, won the affections of his wife against her will, and that when he had won her she was willing to remain away from her lawful husband.

BURNED GARY GIRL WALKS

Ethel Smith Recovering—Newsboy Who Gave Up Leg Worse.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 17.—Miss Ethel Smith, the eighteen-year-old Gary girl who nearly lost her life when she was burned in a motorcycle accident in August, was able to walk for the first time, assisted by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith. William Rugh, the crippled newsboy who parted with his useless leg in order that skin might be procured to save Miss Smith's life, was on the road to recovery Monday, but he took a sudden turn for the worse and his condition is serious. When Rugh heard that Miss Smith was able to walk his joy knew no bounds.

Boston, Oct. 17.—Because of numerous complaints made to him Mayor Fitzgerald will send to the next meeting of the city council the draft of an ordinance which will limit the length of hatpins to be worn by women on the streets and in public conveyances to six inches.

To Renovate Old Furniture.

Collectors of old furniture who want to renovate it themselves are at a loss to know what steps to take. An old and dingy-looking walnut table has been acquired perhaps. What is to be done with it? First of all, make a good strong solution of soap powder and boiling water, and with a scrubbing brush wash the table. When the wood has been well rinsed with clear water let it dry, and then wash it all over again, this time with a decoction, hot as it can be borne, of bran water, which beautifully softens the wood. Now sandpaper it, first with a soft duster, steeped in one part boiled linseed oil and one part vinegar. Rub it again with a dry duster, and finish it off with chamois leather. Rub the piece of furniture a little with chamois leather every day, and the natural grain will show up beautifully. If you like a dull finish use only one hand for rubbing the wood.

INSANITY IN FAMILY

Schranks Relatives for Three Generations Were Tainted.

Investigation of Would-Be Assassin's Papers Does Not Show Him to Be Crazy, However.

New York, Oct. 17.—Among the letters and other papers found in the effects of John Schrank in the Homestead hotel, 148 Cooper street, Brooklyn, there were no writings referring in any way to the man's feeling against Colonel Roosevelt.

Among the papers were Schrank's birth certificate, a brief history of his life scribbled on paper. The police declared, after a careful examination had been made of the contents, that no literature of an anarchistic nature had been found.

Schranks birth certificate showed that his full name was John Nepomuk Schrank and stated that he was born at 7 a. m. on March 5, 1878, at Erding, Bavaria.

The history of his life, written by himself, showed that he came to this country on the steamship Fulda from Bremerhaven, accompanied by his uncle, Dominick Flammang, and Mrs. Flammang, the aunt. He arrived here under the name of John Flammang and was about eleven years and six months old. There was also a legal document showing that he was the sole legatee of the estate left by his aunt, Mrs. Flammang. This estate consisted of a house in Yorkville and was assessed at $15,000.

Although there was nothing among the papers to indicate that Schrank was out of his mind, it was learned that for at least three generations there has been a taint of insanity in Schrank's family. The grandfather of Colonel Roosevelt's assassin, who was a wealthy brewer in Bavaria, it was learned, became insane and died shortly afterward.

It became known that Schrank borrowed $350 from Herman Larunger, brother of the proprietor of the Homestead hotel, before he left the city.

on the bench hearing the government's argument in the "bathub trust" case received bulletins, inuring by inuring of the world's series baseball game at Boston. The progress of the playing was closely watched by the members of the highest court in the land, and especially by Associate Justice Bay, who had requested the bulletins during luncheon recess from 2 to 2:30 p. m. The little slips giving the progress of the play went to him not only during the recess, but when the court had resumed its sitting. They were passed along the bench from justice to justice.

GRABOW RIOT TRIAL ON

Defendants Charge With Inciting Riot in Which Four Were Killed.

Lake Charles, La., Oct. 17.—The taking of evidence in the Grabow riot trial has begun.

The state has indicated it will try to prove that the riot in which four men were killed and forty wounded resulted from a conspiracy of the defendants, who are members of the Brotherhood of Timber Workers. More than 200 witnesses have been summoned and it is believed that the trial will continue three weeks.

Literary Blunders.

Some of the literary blunders quoted by the Journal des Debats are quite delightful. Thus Balzac in his "Cousin Pons" refers to a fan, the "divine masterpiece ordered from Watteau for Mme. de Pompadour," who was only born in the year of the painter's death. He also describes a "midnight mass" celebrated in the evening. Alphonse Daudet is no less careless, his outstanding lapse being perhaps in "Tartarin," wherein he presents the astonished reader with "four thousand Arabs, laughing like madmen, and displaying six hundred thousand white teeth in the sunshine." Champfleury in his "Amoureux de Saint-Perine" describes a phenomenon unknown to scientists in the shape of a "poisoned electric wire," while Octave Feuillet in "Sybille" gravely recorded the existence of "two twins, both aged eighteen."

Cremation in England.

According to a report by the city medical officer (Dr. Collingridge), the total number of cremations in the United Kingdom last year was 1,023, being the highest on record. Of these 114 were at Woking, 125 at Manchester, 38 at Glasgow, 30 at Liverpool, 25 at Hull, 12 at Darlington, 13 at Leicester, 542 at Golders Green, 41 at Birmingham, 17 at Leeds, 20 at Ilford, 10 at Sheffield and 13 at Bradford. The first cremations took place in 1885, when there were three altogether. Since then the number has gone on rapidly increasing. In 1909 there were 855; in 1910, 840, and last year, 1023. Since cremation first received legal recognition in this country (1884), 9,983 cremations have taken place.—London Standard.

Under Both Heads.

Senator Lodge, condemning a certain type of self-important politician, said the other day: "Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and the majority firmly believe that they come under both these heads."

Sick Women

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured many cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are five letters from southern women which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks to you and your great medicine. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time."

"Now I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what these medicines have done for me and I will always speak a good word for them."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Montgomery Co., Va.

LETTER FROM LOUISIANA.

New Orleans, La.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with hot flashes, weak and dizzy feelings, backache and irregularities. I would get up in the morning feeling tired out and not fit to do anything."

"Since I have been taking your Compound and Blood Purifier I feel all right. Your medicines are worth their weight in gold."—Mrs. GASTON BLONDEAU, 1541 Polymnia St., New Orleans, La.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.

Wauchula, Fla.—"Some time ago I wrote to you giving you my symptoms, headache, backache, bearing-down, and discomfort in walking, caused by female troubles."

"I got two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a Package of Sanative Wash and that was all I used to make me a well woman. I am satisfied that if I had done like a good many women, and had not taken your remedies, I would have been a great sufferer. But I started in time with the right medicine and got well. It did not cost very much either. I feel that you are a friend to all women and I would rather use your remedies than have a doctor."—Mrs. MARTIN HODSON, Box 406, Wauchula, Florida.

LETTER FROM WEST VIRGINIA.

Martinsburg, W. Va.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for my mother, daughter and myself. I have told dozens of people about it and my daughter says that when she hears a girl complaining with cramps, she tells her to take your Compound."—Mrs. MARY A. HOCKENBERRY, 712 N. 3rd St., Martinsburg, W. Va.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Newport News, Va.—"About five years ago I was troubled with such pains and bleeding every month that I would have to go to bed. A friend told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. The medicine strengthened me in every way and my doctor approved of my taking it."

"I will be glad if my testimony will help some one who is suffering from female weakness."—Mrs. W. J. BLAYTON, 1029 Hampton Ave., Newport News, Va.

Told of Father Taylor.

A friend sends us another anecdote
of Father Taylor, which will bear repetition. At the dedication of a new church at Quincy, when all the ministers of the neighborhood were assisting, Father Taylor during his sermon
exhorted the Unitarian minister,
"Brother, preach the depravity of man;" the Universalist, "Preach of future judgment;" the Episcopal,
"Keep your pulpit door open;" the Calvinist, "Preach that man is a free agent," and the Baptist, "Don't make dipping all your gospel!" The eccentric orator won all hearts, as usual,
by his kindly plain speaking.—The Outlook.

The recent report that Captain Smith of the ill-fated Titanic had been seen alive and recognized on the streets of Baltimore by a fellowmariner, calls to mind a similar story of Fletcher Christian, the leader in the famous mutiny of the Bounty.
Christian, years after he was supposed to have perished on Pitcairn island, was it is asserted, seen and recognized in London by one of the officers of the Bounty. History—or more probably in these cases, hallucination—repeats itself.

Giants Fight Until Tenth Inning
When Error by Snodgrass Gives American Leaguers Their Chance.

Boston, Oct. 17.—The greatest world's series of many a year was brought to a fighting finish here with the Giants struggling on the short end of a 3 to 2 score at the end of a ten-inning battle, and Jake Stahl's Red Sox the victorious champions of the universe.

Three to three was the way the world's series stood when the game
opened in Fenway park under a bright and spotless sky. One team must win, and the team that did would be the world's champions. The Giants were favorites. They had Marquard, Wiltse, Ames and Mathewson. Matty,
the master who had served victorious
in a hundred pinches. And Matty went in to pitch.

First Count for Giants.
Two innings passed and no man crossed the home plate. Then New York hammered in a run. Red Murray, with Devore on third, burst the leather for a double. The Giants hung on. Matty, unmoved by the terrific howling and cheering, wound up as deliberately and easily as if he were pitching a practice game. No clamor or chaptrap could rattle the old-timer. It would take more than that. And for seven innings Boston hurled itself against the impenetrable defense of the Giants. Likewise Mc-Graw's men clouted and fought to no avail. A youngster, Bedient, was holding the fort for the Red Legs.

The seventh inning brought the first change. New York slipped and a pinch hitter, Olaf Hendriksen, was sent in to win, turned the tide. Hendriksen faced Matty with two on base. Jake Stahl had sounded the rally with a single and Wagner had walked. Olaf was a new one for the Giant star. What was his groove, what was his weakness? Matty didn't know and he guessed wrong. Olaf doubled, scoring Stahl, tying the count, bringing the Boston Red Legs once more within reaching distance of the world's pennant. In the eighth inning Wood went to the mound and stayed there grinning and revengeful until the conclusion of the battle.

It was the tenth round in which the game was won and lost. The Giants, battling their mightiest, scored another run. Murray and Merkle were the heroes.

Snodgrass' Error Fatal.

Boston came to bat. An error by Snodgrass on Engle's hit started the flurry. Engle took second on an out.
Yerkes walked. Tris Speaker was at bat. The cheers of the crowd seemed to penetrate into the hearts of the Boston men. Speaker's swing landed.
A crack, and the ball was soaring into right. Lewis walked. The bases were full. There was only one out.
Anything would do. A double play was all there was to be feared. Garner flied out, a long fly, which shattered the last dream of McGraw and scored Yerkes.

Cheered as They Fight Sea for Life.

San Francisco, Oct. 17.—Eight members of the Golden Gate life saving crew fought for their lives in the surf
here while a crowd of several hundred persons stood on the shore and applauded and cheered, supposing they were witnessing the usual boat drill.
The boat was lost and carried out to sea after it had been capsize three times. The crew swam ashore.

TURKS DEFEATED
BY MONTENEGRINS

Sultan's Troops Either Flee or Surrender—the Entire Border Taken.

BULGARIA DECLARES TURK WAR

Movement on Constantinople by United Balkan Army Next Step—Turkey Expected to Act Against Serbia and Greece.

CETTINJE, Oct. 17.—General Vu-kotic, the Montenegrin commander, reported that he occupied the entire boundary line from Bletopolie to Leg-
no, and the Turks were surrendering or fleeing.
General Martinovitch developed a powerful artillery attack on Targboch.
General Sacredin Bey was killed in the fighting near Sciroka.

London, Oct. 17.—Bulgaria has formally declared war on Turkey. Declarations by Serbia and Greece are expected at any hour.

The powers have finally abandoned
all hope of effecting peace in the Balkans and will now await the outcome of the war. The bourses accepted the war prospect as inevitable and settled to a firmer basis to await events. Financial interests believe the fighting will be localized in Macedonia.

It is regarded here as possible that Turkey will declare war against Serbia and Greece unless the latter nations make their intentions known within the next twenty-four hours.
War Proclamations Expected.

Turkey regards the note from the Balkan states and Greece as "insolent"
and has demanded that an apology
be submitted in twenty-four hours.
This apology will not be forthcoming. War proclamations are expected instead. The Turkish ministers to the lesser Balkan states have been recalled.

The Turkish minister at Athens was recalled after the action of Greece in admitting the Cretan deputies to the Greek parliament. Turkey has entirely ignored the ultimatum presented by Greece demanding the release of Greek vessels held in Turkish waters.

Servians Enter Turkey.
Servian troops for the first time
entered Turkish territory in the vicinity of Ristovatz, where the Turks were routed. The Servians are reported maneuvering across the border, but there is no news of further actual fighting. The Turkish government has sent heavy reinforcements to Ristovatz and a battle is expected today.

BULLET NOT POISONED

Proved by Examination of Schrank's Revolver.

Dean Sommers of Marquette University Completes Chemical Analysis of Pistol's Contents.

Milwaukee, Oct. 17.—No poison was contained in the five bullets found in the revolver taken from John Schrank
immediately after he had fired upon Theodore Roosevelt.

Dean R. E. W. Sommers of Marquette university has completed his chemical analysis, and in his report to District Attorney Zabel and Judge Neelen, he said he found nothing that would indicate the would-be assassin
has resorted to coating the bullets
with poison.

Professor Sommers made this examination at the order of the court.
He first scraped away all particles of grease coating and subjected this to a thorough chemical analysis, after which the leaden bullets were minutely examined for traces of poison.

It has been a practice among assassinators to coat bullets with deadly poison, so that in the event they failed to strike a vital spot the bullet would carry death in another and more subtle form.

smashup which has occurred since
the establishing of the flying school
here when they struck an air pocket on a trip to Washington. Fortunately neither was hurt beyond a few contusions and a plunge into the waters of the harbor, but their hydroaeroplane was demolished.

Forest Fire Menaces Towns.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 17.—A forest

rious fires, and much anxiety is felt.

A good quality of coffee, a good coffee pot and pure fresh boiling

that any kind of metal is an enemy to a good cup of coffee
there is an acid in coffee that immediately changes the character of the coffee absolutely when it comes in contact with metal, especially so, if the metal is not kept in a very sanitary condition
